Springing from the inner hallway, opposite the main entrance before designated in location, is a double 4-foot staircase, with an intermediate landing between the first and second floors, and reaching to the tower that crowns the central structure. This part of the pile is palatial in construction and finish.

Entering the other wing from that just explored a duplicate of plan is traversed, only that the purposes of the apartments are different with the exception of class rooms opening into the assembly room. A great feature of the plan is the means described of throwing all the school rooms into open communication with the assembly room. For exhibition purposes nothing to approach this plan exists in Honolulu. In the extreme end of the wing, looking out on the railroad, is the dining room corresponding to the esthetically room in form, excepting that it has a bay window. The length of the corridor from the end rooms in each wing to the main hallway is 128 feet. Going back to the middle and working out, are the offices, 12ft. x 20ft., with a bath room adjoining. Then there are the principal's room, 15ft. x 19ft.; the matron's room, 15ft. x 20ft., and a spare room, 12ft. x 12ft.

Adjoining the dining room is a spacious pantry with every convenience, opening on the hallway leading from the kitchen. In the culinary suite is also a lavatory, and an elevator communicates with the pool room in the basement. There is an elevator from the laundry in the basement to the upper floors, which with a capacity of 400 pounds will admit of a person riding with the burden of clothes.

A descent into the basement reveals a stone structure under the end of the wing. It contains the pool room, a laundry to contain 24 washtubs, an ironing room and iron-heating room. The walls are all of hard finish. Above, the culinary rooms have tiled floors.

Returning to the staircase, the ascent is made to the dormitories, etc. At the second floor a view into the assembly room is had from a balcony. Opposite is a balcony of crescent shape from which, through the arched main portal, the magnificent view cityward is obtained. The arch mentioned is 22 feet high to the crown. There is a veranda on each wing, branching out from the lookout gallery. Each room along the fronts has a box sash window opening upon the veranda. At the end of the wings are rooms for teachers, one in each case commanding a view down the corridors. All the teachers' rooms are fitted with inside blinds. There are six rooms on one side for two pupils, and one for each. Then there are eight rooms for one girl each. There is one teacher's room in the central portion, also a spare room. As to the pupils' accommodations the foregoing description suits one wing as well as the other.

An important department is the hospital. It has a bathroom and water closet. There is a teachers' bathroom adjoining. There is another bathroom for teachers above the kitchen.

There are eight bathrooms for pupils, two of them fitted with hot water in case of sickness. At the end next the railroad there are five water closets of the latest pattern. All the lavatories in the building have marble-top basins.

Counting the basement, there is a fourth story at that end of the building. There is a spare room over the dining room the same size as that one, to be used as an open dormitory when such accommodation becomes necessary. It is well lighted with fifteen windows. A hall leads therefrom to the staircase, where ascent is made to the tower room, which is devoted to drawing purposes. It is octagonal in shape, 40 feet in diameter, and contains 21 windows. Here a vast stretch of noble scenery is commanded in every direction.

There is a half story below the tower, which is to be utilized as a trunk room. A little recess in the roof is used for ventilation, having four open portholes.

All of the furniture for the school is on hand. Each girl will have, besides bed and chair, a bureau, a washstand and a clothes press. Mr. Bishop gives the school any furniture it may require out of his residence, and a lot of handsome articles belonging to him, in the native koa wood, will grace the chief rooms.

The verandas are eight feet wide. Those on the ground floor have rustic, and those on the second floor shingled pillars.

There are 250 windows and 135 doors in the structure.

Protection from fire will be provided in special tanks connecting with six hydrants within the building.

A special electric light plant will be installed for the Girls' School. The pupils' rooms will not have electric lights inside, but be lighted by lamps in the corridors.

A beautiful design for making the grounds attractive is being carried out. Stone paths are being built to a level grade, two or three feet above the natural surface, and all the space between is to be filled in for gardening. In front of the main entrance a fountain will play.

C. B. Ripley is the architect of the building. Construction has been by day's labor under the direction of William Mutch, superintendent of buildings for the Bishop Estate. To Mr. Mutch's patient piloting of the scribe through the labyrinthian pile the readers of the BULLETIN are indebted for the foregoing description.

It is estimated that the Girls' School, when furnished and equipped, will cost from $65,000 to $70,000.

The Trustees of the Bishop Estate are C. R. Bishop, C. M. Hyde, C. M. Cooke, S. M. Damon and J. O. Carter.

LUCOL :: Grocery :: Store

IS THE BEST PAINT OIL!

Save Half the Amount of Your Oil Bill Through Saving in Pigment.

Every painter should use Lucol instead of Linseed Oil, because:

1. Lucol is more durable than Linseed Oil.
2. Lucol is more economical than Linseed Oil.

PROOF THAT LUCOL IS MORE DURABLE.

Six years of actual use in exterior house painting in California (the most trying climate for paints), in the burning heat of the Arizona Desert, the Arctic cold of Alaska, and on the Atlantic coast, have fully and practically shown that Lucol always outlasts Linseed Oil under the same conditions. All the acid works in San Francisco have discarded Linseed Oil for Lucol.

ILLUSTRATE THIS YOURSELF.

Put strong ammonia on Linseed and Lucol paints. The Linseed paints are destroyed in a few minutes; the Lucol paints are practically unaffected.

PROOF THAT LUCOL IS MORE ECONOMICAL.

Break up 1 lb. paste white lead in one pint of Lucol, and the same quantity in one pint of Linseed Oil. Spread the paints on similar dark surfaces for comparison. The Lucol paint spreads as far as and covers much better than the Linseed paint. To get equally good covering with the Linseed paint you have to use 2 1/2 lbs. of white lead to one pint of Linseed Oil. This means a saving of 1 lb. of paste lead to each pint of Lucol used, or 6 lbs. to every gallon, equivalent to your saving more than half the first cost of the Lucol.

Lucol is not in competition with cheap Linseed Oil substitutes.
